Estimated Total Still Remains at 1,000—Of the 600 Not Accounted for, 400 Are Believed to Be Alive and 200 Still in the River—Three-Scare Victims Recovered Yesterday

Chicago, July 25.—Bodies of 901 persons killed in the capsizing of the steamer Eastland at its wharf in the Chicago river had been recovered to-night after forty hours of searching by divers around the steel hulk, still lying

On its side, half submerged, where it rolled yesterday while laden with 2,408 excursionists.

The total dead as a result of the turning over of the top-heavy ship still remains at approximately 1,000, according to estimates made by Coroner Hoffman, whose reports indicated that probably 100 bodies still were held in the mud of the river by the superstructure of the overturned boat.

While only 1,002 passengers of the Westernland have registered with the Western Electric company as saved, it is likely that many more are still being Manager W. K. Greenbaum, of the Transportation company, which had leased the steamer for the Western Electric company's excursion said:

"It was a terrible calamity and I can only express my deep regret. As I said before, the government inspectors' O. K. when the passengers were taken aboard seemed assurance that all was well."

After the lapse of nearly five hours Desk Sergeant McErg of the Evan-

Acting Mayor Moorhouse and his advisers today decided to raise a relief fund of $200,000. The Western Electric Co., of which the city is a stockholder, is the largest contributor. A vast majority of the ill-fated excursion party, also has announced $100,000 for the fund. The city's share is available for relief. Numerous private relief funds have been started.

ers for the thousands whose hearts have been pierced by grief. The day was one of gloom. The sky was cloudy and a mist hung in the air. There was more than the usual Sabbath quiet everywhere and baseball games were postponed.

Various theories as to what caused the sinking of the ship are being advanced by no means bears out any one theory. One theory given credence by many is that the water ballast of the boat had been pumped out to lighten her and the weight of the large number of passengers made the boat top heavy.

Another theory is that the boat was simply overcrowded, while a third theory is that the bow of the boat had lasted; that the tug warping the Eastland from the docks started too soon; that congestion of passengers to the deck contributed to the accident.

Tuesday dawned calm and cloudy. The Eastday lay on her side close to the south bank of the river at Clark street like some giant fish. Her position had not shifted during the night. The river current, which ordinarily is from east to west at rates per hour, had been shut off to about one mile an hour by the closing of the gates at Lockport. This kept the steamer's hull steady and prevented drifting away.

Policemen and firemen were on guard at the bridges all night and were relieved about 8 o'clock this morning by other men. The police were fighting flames from the

GONZALES CONTROLS MEXICAN RAILWAY

MESSAGE TO CARRANZA AGENCY SAYS HEADQUARTERS ESTABLISHED AT OMETUSCO.

Orders Mexico City Be Not Re-Occupied Due to Conflicts in Operations.

Washington, July 25.—A message from General Carranza at Vera Cruz, given out tonight by the Carranza agency here, said that Gen. Pablo Gonzalez was in control of the line of the Mexican railway and had established his general headquarters at Ometusco with his advance posts at Villa de Guadalupe. Gen. Francisco Cosío forces are at Texcoco and Los Reis, the message said.

"I have ordered that the City of Mexico be not reoccupied completely at this time, due to conflicts in military operations."

General Carranza added: "The Villistas have evaded fighting, but they are being pursued. General Obregon continues his march toward the north."

Villa Orders Roads Destroyed.
El Paso, Texas, July 25.—Destruction of railroads south of Zacatecas has been ordered by Gen. Francisco Villa to delay the advance of Obregon's army from the south, according to an announcement made here. It was announced that trains would be operated for the present only as far south as La Colorado, 151 miles south of Torreon.

Miguel Diaz Lombardo, Villa's minister of foreign affairs, received a message to visit him at Torreon. Lombardo expects to leave tomorrow to discuss with Villa his plan for peace. That there will be any military engagement in northern Mexico soon appears unlikely. Long stretches of destroyed railways separate Villa and Obregon. It is assumed Gen. Pablo Gonzalez, who withdrew from Mexico City and moved northward, and the Villa expeditionary force soon will be in contact.

No More Latin Signs in Constantinople

Constantinople, July 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The municipal decree went forth a few days ago that printing in Latin characters on shop windows and signs should disappear. The order has forthwith been obeyed. Constantinople, which used to display in its cosmopolitan character as many foreign signs as native, is now innocent of anything which the foreigner can read. Whatever inconvenience it involves to a large and important element, the result is a great improvement in the looks of the streets of the Ottoman capital. From many a building have been erased, painted over or removed the blatant Latin letters crying the names of wares of the occupants. The streets present a most uninvited appearance of neatness and respectability.

No Turkish lettering had ever been so conspicuous to the view as the Latin lettering and Turkish, even when written large, has a picturesque aspect which no western language can claim.

Besides its foreign element Constantinople has a large population of Armenians, Greeks and Jews, few of whom read Turkish though they speak it. Most signs and notices are, therefore given in at least two of these other necessary languages as well as in Turkish and some western languages. Signs in Armenian, Greek and Hebrew are allowed to stay provided they are not so displayed as to dominate the Turkish letters.

To modify practically all the signs in a capital of over 1,000,000 inhabitants means a vast amount of scraping, painting out and repainting. It means a whole city at work with ladders, ropes and hooks, letting down great oblong boards embellished with the forbidden characters. Some canny persons have simply tacked a cloth sign over the old, but such boldness is generally backed up with a German or Austrian passport. Allies must count for something—even to the extent that signs in Gothic characters are permissible. But this was an afterthought. The signs of some Germans and Austrians are passing muster in Latin characters, especially if the French words for "Brothers" ("Compagnie" or "Societe") have been eliminated.

Many shopkeepers have entirely altered their signs, but the majority of them have contented themselves with removing the offensive Latin lettering. This often results in an amusingly unbalanced appearance to the shop front or to some highly elaborate design in which the Latin letters were an essential part. In other cases it has simply created a swath of blank background, which by edict must be black or red.

Pera, the so-called European section of the Turkish capital, and Galata, the commercial and financial quarter, have been hardest hit, or most transformed, by the new order. Besides the large signs over the entrances of banks, shops and hotels and small but expensive shingles of the lawyers, doctors, architects and other professional men have disappeared. These were often printed only in Latin characters as a medium known to practically every one who could read and write at all. As yet nothing has taken their place.

CHANGE THE VIBRATION It Makes for Health.

A man tried leaving off meat, potatoes, coffee, etc., and adopted a breakfast of fruit, Grape-Nuts with cream, some crisp toast and a cup of Postum.

His health began to improve at once for the reason that a meat eater will reach a place once in a while where his system seems to become clogged and the machinery doesn't work smoothly.

A change of this kind puts aside food that is slow to digest and takes up food and drink of the highest value, already partly digested and capable of being quickly changed into good, rich blood and strong tissue.

A most valuable feature of Grape-Nuts is the natural mineral elements (phosphate of potash, etc.) grown in the grains from which it is made. These elements are absolutely necessary for the well-balanced rebuilding of body, brain and nerves.

A few days' use of Grape-Nuts will show one a way to physical and mental strength well worth the trial.

that the Employees' Benefit association had $100,000 available for relief work.

They stated not more than one-third of the victims were employees of the company. A sub-committee composed of Julius Rosenwald, chairman; J. B. Forgan, A. A. Sprague, John Scott, R. J. Dunham, James A. Pugh, B. E. Sunny, W. A. Gardner, Cyrus H. McCormick, E. J. Buffington, George M. Reynolds and James Simpson, was appointed to obtain subscriptions to the relief fund.

Acting Mayor Moorhouse said the $200,000 relief fund was guaranteed by the sub-committee and would be available within 24 hours.

Managers of Chicago theatres, instead of closing their places of amusement today, announced they would keep them open and give a percentage of the receipts to the relief fund.

Ernest P. Bicknell, national director of the National Red Cross, arrived tonight to take charge of the relief work.

Acting Mayor Moorhouse received hundreds of telegrams from officials of cities all over the United States and Canada, expressing sympathy and offering aid. He said outside assistance was not needed.

An emergency call to clergymen of Chicago and visiting ministers to offer their services at the funerals of the dead was issued today by an informal committee.

Hundreds of physicians offered their assistance without charge to the survivors. City health department nurses also were attending bereaved families.

Acting Mayor Moorhouse today received the following telegram from President Wilson:

"I am sure I speak the universal feeling of the people of the country in expressing my profound sympathy and sorrow in the presence of the great disaster which saddened so many homes."

This cablegram was received from Sir Thomas Lipton of London:

"I am greatly shocked. My heartfelt sympathy goes out to those who have lost their dear ones. If you start a relief fund, put me down for $1000."

Scenes at the Morgue.
Sorrow which spread over the city with the Eastland disaster and engulfed a thousand homes with grief found most poignant expression in the presence of the silent forms of the dead out in the drill hall of the Second Regiment armory, Chicago's temporary morgue.

Side by side lay the dead. Among them walked anxious hundreds seeking to identify a loved one and hoping they might not succeed. Time and again a group would pause beside a pitiful bundle. There would be a gasp, a low-voiced exclamation, a flood of tears and another would be taken from the list of unidentified dead.

There was little sign of violent emotion, though everywhere the tenseness of repression was apparent. Men and women, boys and girls, and even little ones, bereft in many cases of all their loved ones, though they shook with sobs, made no outcry as they beheld their dead. Some few broke down and were cared for by Red Cross nurses.

All through the night load after load of bodies were received at the morgue and through the morning at less and less frequent intervals the procession continued.

Fifty undertakers and forty embalmers worked rapidly preparing the bodies for burial. Before a body passed out the identification was recorded and the name of the nearest relative placed on file. So perfect had been the preparatory work that from noon until 1 o'clock more than 100 bodies were taken away and a few hours later less than 200 bodies remained in the temporary morgue.

Approximately 5,000 persons had gathered about the armory before noon today.

Two and three hundred at a time, they were admitted and when all of one group had passed out another took its place.

Many of the bodies bore no signs of struggle. Calm and still their faces lay upturned, uncovered to aid in identification. Here and there, however, was one with distorted limbs, with the most pitiful of the many sad scenes were the bodies of the little ones. For several hours several of these little ones lay with smiling upturned faces near where the pitiful sight became too much for the nerves of those most used to scenes of death and the tiny forms were carried to a more remote part of the hall.

In the Red Cross room there were many scenes of sorrow. One woman, many along in years, kept repeating "All gone, husband, son, his wife and their two children."

In the outgoing stream was one undertaker's litter, containing husband, wife and child. Identification was made by a friend.

Several times through the day the nurses were obliged to quiet some who became hysterical. Several women fainted, some few screamed and one man, bowed with years, screamed and struggled with those about him when he saw the bodies of his wife and children.

From the first word of the disaster till late tonight neither Coroner Hoffman, his aides, nor any of the police officials took any rest.

Coroner Hoffman announced that should any of the bodies be unidentified he would call on the civic organizations of the city to join with the Western Electric company in a public funeral for the unnamed victims.

Peddler Saw Boat Sink.

Not more than an hour after the Eastland had turned on her side in the river an aged vegetable peddler rang the back door bell of a North Side flat.

"Why, John," said the mistress of the apartment when she answered the call, "you look sick."

"Seck!" replied the old man, "oh, now for days I will be seck. I see that boat fall over. All those poor women and children—they cry for us to help and we could not. Oh, all my life I see them, and he stumbled down the stairs blinded by tears.

Many lives might have been saved had the warning sounded from the Clark street bridge by another peddler been heeded. Mike Javanco, 1119 Larrabee street, was driving across the bridge when he saw the Eastland begin to keel over.

"Hey!" he yelled to the throng in the bow of the steamer, almost beneath him, "get off. D' boat's tippin' over!"

There was a burst of laughter. "Gwan!" shouted an excursionist, "you're crazy."

Javanco went on, but almost before his wagon had cleared the bridge the Eastland was on her beam ends and the peddler went back to aid in the rescue work.

Policeman John Root told today of an aged woman who, when he scrambled on the upturned side of the steamer, was clinging to a beam in the interior of the ship. He could see her through a port hole and called to her to hang on. He found a rope and dropped the end down through the port hole.

"Her head sank beneath the water," said Root, "but her hand grasped the line. I dragged her up, but found to my horror that the port was too small to get her through. I encouraged her to hang on while I got help, but when I returned with men and tools to enlarge the opening she was gone. A half hour later when we had cut through the steel walls we found her body. I do not know who she was."

Condemns Construction of Vessel.

Chicago, July 25.—A copy of a letter from a naval architect condemning the construction of the Eastland will be part of the evidence used by State's Attorney Hoyne in his investigation of the disaster today.

This was written by John Devereaux York of Chicago to the United States harbor inspector here, August 3, 1913.

"I stated in that letter," said Mr. York, "that the Eastland was a dangerous boat. She had a 38 foot beam for which all laws of steamboat construction require at least a 40-inch keel. The Eastland had no keel at all."

"There was not a stevedore in the hold who was not aware of the danger, the fact that none of them was found in the 'glory hold' after she turned over showed that there was a narrow scaling ladder leading from that hold and twenty men were employed there. It would take twenty men at least 20 minutes to get out. But they were all out when the ship listed."

Wilson Orders Probe.

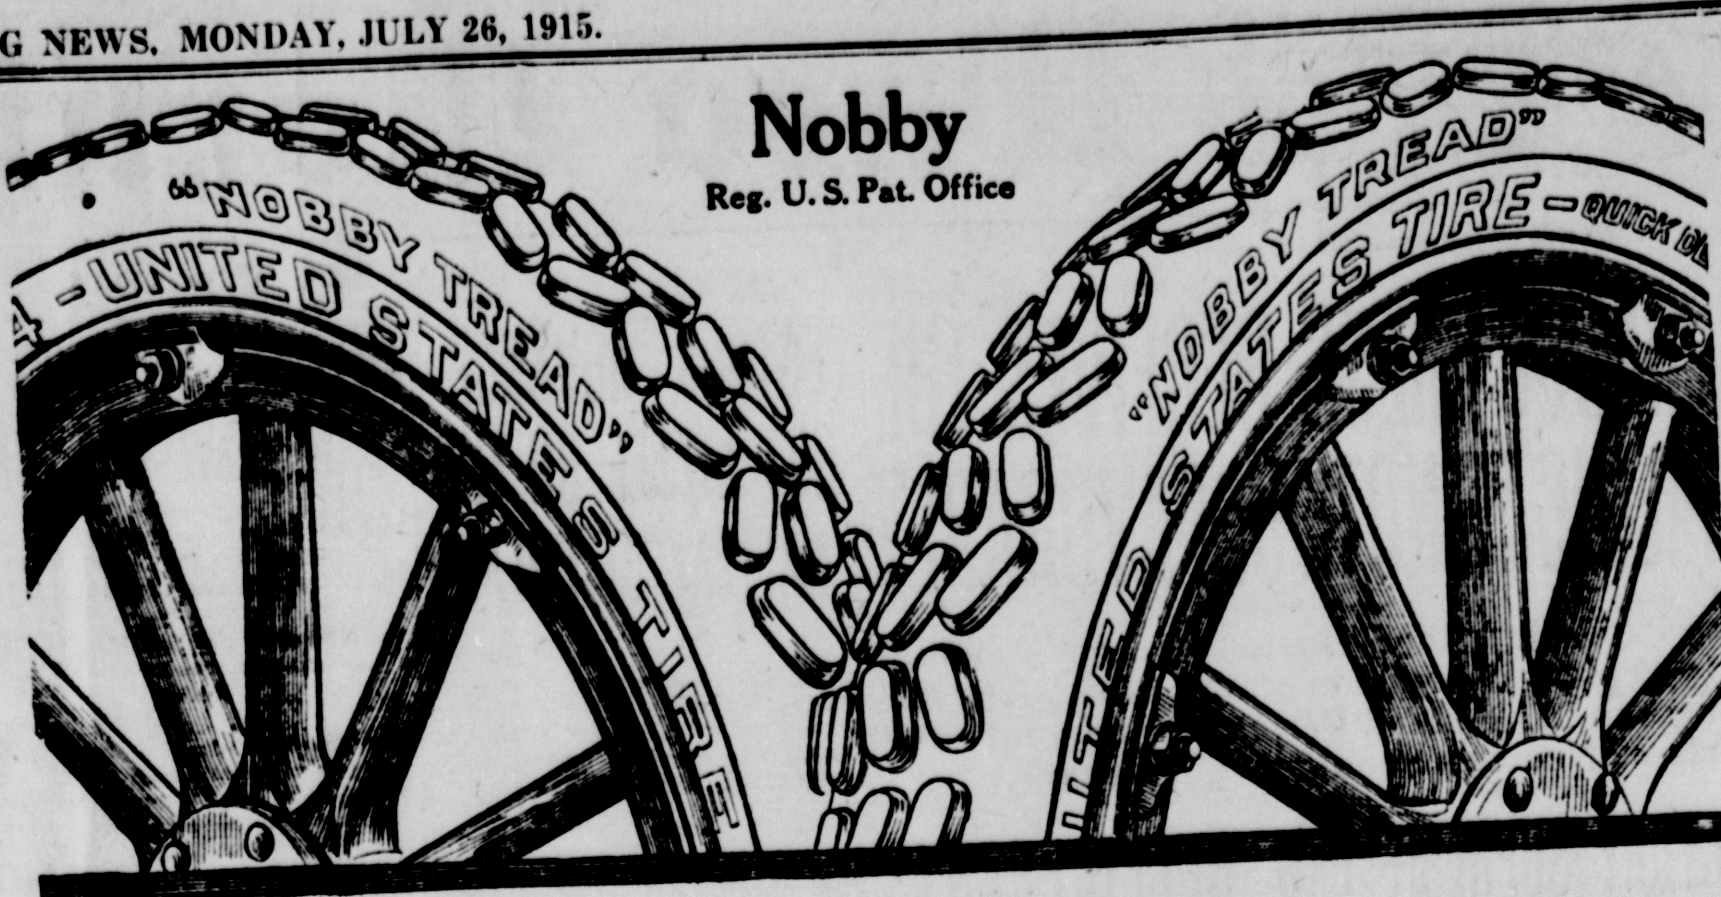

Cornish, N. H., July 25.—President Wilson today ordered that a complete investigation be made by the department of commerce into the Eastland disaster. Acting Secretary Sweet of the department sent him word that the causes of the disaster would be looked into, and the president directed that nothing be left undone to fix the responsibility.

Treasury of Spain in Serious Straits

Madrid, July 25.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—Spanish treasury statements for the first six months of 1915 show very clearly some of the financial difficulties of the country at the time of the failure of the $150,000,000 loan, and the consequent cabinet crisis of June 22. While the books of the treasury show an increase of receipts over any previous year they also show an increase of expenditure which, when taken together with the interest that must be paid on Spain's $1,814,270,000 debt, regularly produce a deficit. To meet this was one of the principal reasons for trying to float the recent unfortunate loan.

The total receipts for the first half year of 1915 were $2,134,816,602, as against a total for the same period of last year of $1,778,856,644, exhibiting a nominal gain of $369,960,138 in the national revenues over last year. But in this same period this year there have been $36,524,950 of treasury obligations to meet, in addition to the ordinary normal expenses, with the result that, on the whole, the Spanish treasury is actually behind $9,564,812 in comparison with the first half of the year 1914.

Had it been possible for the Dato ministry to float its $150,000,000 loan, it could at least have deferred the day of reckoning until less parlous times. Public opinion in Spain seems to agree that the abstention of wealthier investors from subscription to the loan was partially caused, due to war conditions, and partially politics, due to the fear that the Dato ministry was dangerously close to the quadruple entente powers and might at any time try to drag Spain into the war.

"Her Vocation," comedy-drama in three parts, and a special Edison feature with Sally Crute and Augustus Phillips as the leading stars, is somewhat out of the ordinary run of features for the comedy element continually keeps showing up and making things extremely interesting. Sally Crute as the adventurous newspaper woman, and Augustus Phillips as the husband of the woman writer, who sends him to the tenderloin to get "material" for her, give a funny slant indeed. Harry Beaumont and Margaret Prussing help to make more fun and speed up the excitement when the investigators are trapped in the dive by the police.

Also one of those inimitable and hard-to-get Ham and Bud comedies of fifteen minutes of continuous humor and enjoyment.

HIPPODROME.

"The Rosary."

Manager Preston Everett of the Hippodrome takes pride in the announcement that "The Rosary" will be shown here today and tomorrow. With the announcement, the management states that "The Rosary," as a story, is the most inspiring and uplifting ever screened. As a play, it will stand the acid test of comparison and surpasses all that have gone before.

The acting of Kathlyn Williams, Charles Clary and Wheeler Oakman is commensurate with the story and production. It is the fanciful dream of Edward E. Rose that has enchanted, in song and book, almost the entire population of the globe. The picture will serve to illustrate what is probably the world's best known and most beloved story. Further than that, it will immortalize the all but divine theme.

"The hours spent with thee, dear heart,

Are as a string of pearls to me. I count them over, every one apart, My Rosary, My Rosary."

A wide plain in a desert place. It is night. Gradually light comes as the stars, one by one, twinkle and appear in the firmament. We see, as though looking through the center of the glittering roadway, far down to earth, two dim figures, and they toil onward and onward as they follow the guiding star. Slowly each star seems to glide into its place until they form a rosary.

At the same time the walls of a rude building vanish in the starlight, and we see as if inside the stable, the cattle in their stalls and the Christ-child lying in the manger.

"I tell each bead unto the end, And there a cross is hung."

A more artistic and dramatic photograph could hardly be imagined than this production by the Selig Polyscope company. It tells the story of the many trying events which fill the life of Father Kelly. From childhood he was told that his calling was the church and his heart directed him that way, but in early manhood when a young girl came into his life he wavered for a short time from his determination. He won the battle which raged in his heart, however, and devoted himself to the church. Later in life a boy—the son of the woman he loved—came to him and Father Kelly cared for the boy as though he were his own. The boy grew to manhood and married. His wife's sister was ruined by a worthless fellow and in protecting the girl's name the wife aroused the husband's suspicion. A separation followed and Father Kelly, heartbroken over the tragedy, did all he could to bring them together. In the end he was successful and happiness came into their lives again.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

The Keyes Sisters and Their Own Players will open a two weeks' engagement at the Orpheum (formerly the Cozy) commencing August 2. This company has just finished a successful thirty weeks' engagement in Dallas at the Jefferson theatre, to which place they go back to this next September. The company is now on a short road tour and by special request were brought to Waco to open the season at the Orpheum after this popular playhouse has been thoroughly renovated.

The Orpheum theatre is now under new management and will play a class of attractions and introduce different novelties to the theatregoers of Waco.

Notice to Subscribers.
Delivery routes in the city of Waco are in the hands of independent carriers, who buy their papers at wholesale prices. Subscriptions are due them, not the Waco Morning News. They are under heavy bond, not only to give the best delivery service, but to pay for the papers each month. Their remuneration is the difference between the wholesale price and the retail price which they receive from subscribers. This margin of profit is such that they cannot afford to extend credit, except month by month. They are not required, and they are advised against, delivering the paper to anyone who does not pay in accordance with the above subscription terms. These carriers are all earnest, hard working men and they will appreciate any courtesy shown them.

The Morning News should be delivered throughout the city of Waco by 6:30 a. m., and subscribers failing to receive the paper at that time will confer a favor by phoning the Circulation Department, both phones 1142, and a copy will be sent by special messenger.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of the Morning News will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

DEFEAT OF THE AMENDMENTS.

With the exception of the heavy vote polled against the proposal to separate the University of Texas and the Agricultural and Mechanical College, there was little surprise in the result of Saturday's election wherein all the other five proposed constitutional amendments were overwhelmingly defeated and the separation amendment had a very close call. If indeed it was not defeated also. Four of the six amendments involved additional taxes and expense and this may be taken as one reason for defeating them so decisively, though the additional taxes and costs to the people in three of the amendments would have been a matter of local option and only those counties and districts desiring to create a students' loan fund, improve their roads or protect their land from overflows would have been affected. The additional cost in the addition of two judges to the state supreme court was the only statewide issue in which an additional expense to the taxpayers figured.

We were hopeful of the success of the separation amendment and while we supported all the others we hardly anticipated they would be adopted because they were newer and had been less discussed than the question of separating the leading state schools of Texas. But the instruction of some of the anti-prohibition leaders to swat all the amendments so as to make sure of a vote by those who follow their suggestions against the suffrage resolution is probably responsible for the large showing made against the separation proposal.

People of Texas do not take kindly to constitutional amendments. They give the organic law in its present form the benefit of the doubt in most cases and not until issues involved in those amendments have been before the people for several years, as a rule, do they care to incorporate new provisions in the constitution. There have been amendments that have been adopted in recent years upon their first presentation, but there was none among them to arouse the organized opposition of the liquor interests and there was no special incentive to any one to work up an opposition. And had it not been for the big concern of the liquor interests involved in the suffrage resolution voted upon Saturday it is quite likely that the separation amendment would have been safely adopted and that some of the other meritorious amendments would have come through successfully.

But the vote over the state was very light, and as long as it is impossible to rally the people as a whole to the polls for an expression upon amendments to the constitution we shall have to content ourselves with an expression of a decided minority of the citizenship of the state. Agitation in behalf of the principles involved in several of the measures passed upon Saturday will be continued, the questions will be resubmitted in due course of time in the same or modified forms and the people of Texas will come later to adopt a majority of the views which they rejected Saturday. At least, this is our guess and as we guessed the defeat of at least five of the amendments a week or more before the election, our claim to the privilege of a guess of what Texans will do at the polls in the future is as valid as that of any one else.

In the meantime we shall strive to bring the people to see more fully the importance of a full expression on all matters submitted to their judgment at the polls.

POLITICS IN STATE SCHOOLS.

For several years the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Oklahoma has been regarded by the politicians of that state as more or less of a political football, but a strenuous effort is being made by the board of directors to rescue the school and keep it free from politics hereafter.

One long step in that direction was the election as president of J. W. Cantwell, for many years superintendent of the public schools of Fort Worth, and who, though beset by the politicians there, refused to become identified with any political faction and did much toward keeping the schools out of politics and putting them upon a proper plane.

Frank M. Gault, president of the board of directors of the Oklahoma College, in reply to a letter from an employee in the printing department of the college on a political subject, notifies him that politics by men employed in the school will no longer be tolerated. So pertinent are Mr. Gault's remarks on this subject that we are reproducing them in part as follows, for Texas is not entirely free from political interference in her state institutions, though in Texas we have noticed more politics on the outside looking in than on the inside looking out:

"I believe it to be to the best interests of the institution at Stillwater, and the district agricultural schools, that they be kept as far away from political turnouts as possible, and this board is going to work to that end.

"I do not want to leave any question of doubt as to the position the board is going to take on all matters political when it comes to educational matters and the selection of faculties and employees for this institution. Not that we desire to interfere, in any way, with any man's political rights or to question his right to affiliate with the party of his choice, but as you know, there has been considerable talk around Stillwater in Payne county about the organizations of the various parties controlling this institution. Neither Stillwater nor any political organization will have any weight in controlling this institution.

"What we desire to do is to educate the young men and young women to a useful calling in the walks of life and to become proficient in the agricultural and mechanical upbuilding of the state.

"This institution has been neglected and handicapped by political broils so long that it will take an iron hand to eradicate all politics from this institution. And I ask that all of the employees of this institution to quietly look after their work for which they receive their salaries and to keep politics outside of the institution."

MONEY COST OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Consumption alone formerly cost the United States over $1,000,000,000 a year, says Dr. A. C. Ellis, director of extension of the University of Texas. Three times as many people in proportion to population have this disease in America as do in England, Wales, Scotland, Sweden, Norway or Switzerland. Since the discovery of the germ by Dr. Koch and of the improved methods of prevention and cure, it has been shown that where this knowledge is applied, 79 per cent of the loss from tuberculosis can be prevented. Of course, the greatest saving comes from the prevention of the spread of the disease through modern sanitation, but even in the treatment of those already afflicted the saving is large. Of the patients treated in the great Bourgmont sanitarium in Belgium in 1903-4, 76 per cent had returned to their regular occupations and were still continuing their improvement four years after leaving the hospital. Germany has reduced the death rate from consumption over 57 per cent in the nation and 42 per cent in the army by applying modern science. Frederick L. Hoffmann, the insurance statistician, states that the death rate from this disease in American cities has been reduced from 318 per 100,000, in the decade 1872-82, to 182 per 100,000 in the decade 1902-1912. Hoffmann estimated that 200,000 lives had been saved in the United States during the decade ending 1910 by the scientific methods applied in combating tuberculosis. Placing the value of each life at $1,700, the conservative figures usually used, this represents a saving of $340,000,000 to the country.

While the dog days may make us feel like a dog it does not follow that we would be justified in acting like one.

"Cattle grow weaker at the packing centers," reads a headline. Human cattle also grow faint as they approach the guillotine.

It has been suggested that Harry Thaw's defeat of the real purpose of the law and his frequent association with expert counsel ought to qualify him as a corporation attorney.

We are at least glad that woman suffrage was not among the amendments to share the defeat that was accorded the majority of the other measures in the election of Saturday.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS.

In round numbers there were 22,000,000 persons enrolled in educational institutions in the United States in 1914, according to the annual report of the commissioner of education just issued. Of these over 19,000,000 were in elementary schools; 1,374,000 in secondary schools, both public and private; and 216,000 in colleges and universities. Close to another hundred thousand were in normal schools preparing to be teachers, 67,000 were in professional schools, and the remainder were scattered through other types of institutions. The teachers for this educational army numbered 700,000, of whom 566,000 were in public schools. In point of rapid growth the public high school still presents the most impressive figures; the enrollment for 1914 is greater by over $4,000 than for the year before.

The cost of education for the year, as estimated by the bureau, was $750,000,000. "This three-quarters of a billion is a relatively small amount when compared with other items in the public expense," declares the report. "It is less by $500,000,000 than the cost of running the federal government; it is less than one-third the nation's expenditure for alcoholic liquors; it is only a little over three times the estimated cost of admissions to moving-picture theatres in the United States for the same year. Measured in terms of products of the soil, the United States spent somewhat more for education in 1914 than the value of its cotton crop, somewhat less than the value of its wheat crop, and less than half the value of the annual harvest of corn; while the nation's bill for education was less by nearly a hundred million than the value of the exports from the harbor of New York in the calendar year just passed."

Very little increase is yet to be noted in the average term for public schools. Between 1910 and 1913 the increase was from 157.5 days a year to 158.1—a growth of only six-tenths of a day in three years. Attendance has improved, however. The average number of days attended by each person enrolled increased from 113 in 1910 to 115.6 in 1913.

Special subjects treated in this year's annual report of the commissioner of education include: The junior high school; Montessori schools in the United States; denominational schools; vocational education; education for child nurture and home-making; school surveys, and education for special classes for children.

Now that the "movies" have had to resort to ex-Governor Bill Sulzer of New York to recruit their force of actors, available material must be getting scarce. But then the "movies" have to cater to the people and some people have very peculiar tastes.

The nominal strength of Turkey's navy is about 40,000 sailors and marines, exclusive of officers, commanders and admirals. Three dreadnaughts, built in 1912 and 1913; two cruisers, three old battleships, and a variety of old gunboats comprise the total number of vessels.

While we regretted to see some of the wholesome provisions proposed in Saturday's election defeated as they were, we have an idea that the principal mourners are those eminent jurists of the state who had begun to groom themselves for the two additional cushions that would have been placed on the supreme bench, in case of the increase in membership.

It was very kind of the pickle manufacturers to play into the hands of the sweet June brides as they did at their meeting in Chicago when they declared, "Pickle eaters are invariably the sweetest-tempered and most affectionate men." When the June groom gets sour and disagreeable, all the wife will have to do will be to pass the pickles and insist that he eat. The next question is, Do pickles have the same kind of sweetening influence on the women?

FAVORS DALLAS FOR CONVENTION CITY

SAM P. COCHRAN IN LETTER TO MAYOR LINDSEY TELLS OF ITS ADVANTAGES.

Refers to Handling of Shriners as Indication of Ability to Take Care of Democratic Meeting.

Dallas, July 25.—A letter just received by Mayor Henry D. Lindsey of Dallas from Sam P. Cochran, in attendance at the Shriners' convention at Seattle, Wash., brought, in the shape of a certificate, one of the strongest endorsements of Dallas as the democratic convention city that could be offered. In view of the fact that it comes from high officials of that order and expresses their satisfaction as to the manner in which this city handled the national meeting of the Shriners in 1913. The certificate, which was signed by all of the past potentates of the order since 1892, and by three other high officials, follows:

"To the Honorable Mayor and Board of Commissioners of the City of Dallas, Texas:

"The undersigned take pleasure in certifying that at and during the thirty-ninth annual session of the Imperial Council of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of North America, held in Dallas, Texas, in May, 1913, the arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the official representatives and the many thousands of visitors, were highly satisfactory; that the hotel facilities and transportation service were ample for the accommodation of all; that the charges therefor were fair and reasonable and no extortion was practiced in any direction; that the hospitality and entertainment tendered the visitors were generous and pleasing; and in our opinion, the city of Dallas is in all respects fully prepared to entertain and properly care for the national democratic convention in 1916."

(Signed): William E. Melish, Cincinnati, O., potentate, 1902-3; A. E. McCreary, Denver, Col., potentate, 1897-98; Lou B. Winsor, Reed City, Mich., potentate, 1906-07; Philip C. Shafer, Philadelphia, Pa., potentate, 1901-2; Henry J. Aikin, Omaha, Neb., potentate, 1903-04; George L. Brown, Buffalo, N. Y., potentate, 1904-05; A. F. Clayton, St. Joseph, Mo., potentate, 1906-07; Frank C. Roundy, Chicago, Ill., potentate, 1908-09; Edwin L. Alder, Cedar Rapids, Ia., potentate, 1905-06; J. P. Treat, Fargo, S. D., potentate, 1911-12; Wm. J. Cunningham, Baltimore, Md., potentate, 1912-13; Wm. W. Lavin, Winston-Salem, N. C., potentate, 1913-14; Frederick R. Smith, Rochester, potentate, 1914-15; James McGee, New York City, Emeritus Imperial Council; W. B. Brown, Pittsburgh, Pa., Imperial treasurer for twenty years; B. W. Rowell, Lynn, Mass., Imperial Recorder for twenty years.

During the Shriners' convention held in Dallas in 1913, there were registered from outside of the city 5,000 members, and from Texas 5,000 members. Added to these were members of families of those registered, which, according to an estimate of local committeemen who had the matter in charge, made a total of about 40,000, requiring accommodation during the entire period of the convention and entertainment of the highest character, such as would be required for the coming delegates of the democratic convention. To these are still to be added the thousands of visitors and sightseers not in attendance at the convention. It is unlikely that the democratic convention will produce a larger out of the state attendance than the Shriners.

That Dallas should have the convention and be able to meet all its requirements in affording suitable accommodations and entertainment for all who attend, is the universal expression coming from party leaders and other men of prominence familiar with the ability of this city to entertain such bodies.

Hon. Cato Selts, present national committeeman from Texas, is one of the most enthusiastic advocates of the Texas city, and has gone over the situation here with the local committee, with reference to the auditorium and other requirements and pronounced Dallas equal to the occasion. Governor Ferguson is heartily in accord with the movement and is ready to give his influence and personal effort, no less confident in Dallas' fitness for such an undertaking.

Col. Thomas H. Ball, former candidate for governor, sums up the situation by saying: "There is nothing too good for Dallas and few cities better equipped for entertaining citizens to take care of."

County Judges to See How Hogs Are Treated for Cholera

San Antonio, July 25.—Motion pictures showing the way farmers should inoculate hogs for cholera and calves for blackleg will be shown at the joint meeting of the County Judges and County Commissioners' association at 8 a. m. college at 5 to 7. The pictures were taken at the Farmers' Free Chautauqua, which closed a week's session at Exposition park, this city, today.

D. E. Colp, secretary-treasurer of the Texas Good Roads association, advocates the taking of motion pictures as a means of attracting crowds at good roads meetings throughout the state. Mr. Colp says as a result of his own experience, "The only way to break the attendance at road improvement meetings. He says not only children but grown-ups like to break into the films.

The object of the meeting at College Station is to discuss the proposed state highway act, which provides for the establishment of a state highway commission to standardize and economize the road improvement in Texas through co-operation with county highway commissions. Lieutenant Governor W. P. Hobby of Beaumont will represent the state and lead the discussion on the measure.

Among the subjects to be discussed will be: "Are Special Road Laws Advisable?" "County Convict Labor?" "Maintenance of Improved Roads?" "Should a Commissioner be Supreme in the Expenditure of Money in His Own District?" and similar topics regarding highway improvement.

New Oil Well Moran Field. Albany, July 25.—The Corsicana Petroleum company has brought in an oil well about three miles southwest of the proven Moran field. The well was capped immediately and it is not known what the output will be. This enlarges the Moran field greatly. The Producers oil company is now drilling nine wells, but only one in the proven territory, which is Webb No. 5.

LEE ELDER MURDER CASE TO TRIAL TODAY

MARLIN KILLING ONE OF MOST NOTORIOUS TO COME UP IN PRESENT SESSION.

Charged With Murder of Baby in Gun Fight on Farm Ten Miles From Marlin.

Marlin, July 25.—Much interest is attached to the opening of the district court here tomorrow morning, as the Lee Elder murder case is on docket, in which the county planter is charged with the alleged murder of the little Walker baby, in a gun fight between himself and Walker on his farm about ten miles from Marlin.

It is believed the trial will hinge on the farm-tenant feud question, as numbers of land owners, neighbors to the Elder plantation, have been summoned as witnesses.

Walker claims the fight occurred on account of the Elders' alleged attempt to drive him from the place after he had planted his crops, maintaining that was the custom of the Elders in the treatment of their tenants.

Seventy-five special veniremen were summoned, but it is stated to be very likely to require twice that many to secure a jury.

Dr. Bailey at Marlin. Marlin, July 25.—Dr. S. C. Bailey of San Antonio, field representative of the Buckner Orphans' home at Dallas, addressed two large audiences at the Baptist church Sunday.

Rev. C. G. Howard, pastor of the Baptist church, is conducting a revival at McCanahan, about five miles from here.

Petitions Will be Presented at Marlin Today Asking for Pro Election This Side of Brazos.

(Lott Herald.)

Petitions are being circulated this week asking for a prohibition election in that part of Falls county lying west of the Brazos river.

The petitions will be presented to the commissioners' court next Monday, July 26, asking that the election be granted at the earliest possible date, which under the law cannot be less than fifteen days.

JUDGE D. CORLEY SPEAKS AT CRYSTAL

MAN WITHOUT HANDS DELIVERS LECTURE ON "OVERCOMING DIFFICULTIES."

ILLUSTRATES CONTRIVANCES

Handicaps That Hinder Progress Are Grouped Into Three Classes.

To a large crowd of men and boys at the Crystal theatre yesterday afternoon, County Judge Quentin D. Corley of Dallas county, sometimes called the "Armless Wonder," delivered his interesting illustrated lecture on "Overcoming Difficulties." Probably no man in Texas is better qualified to talk on the subject, for while Judge Corley has lost both hands and all of one arm, he does almost anything that any other man can do.

Many have compared Judge Corley's lecture with that of Miss Helen Keller on "Happiness." Both have achieved wonders against almost insurmountable difficulties, but while Miss Keller learned to read and talk, although deaf and blind, she did it through the hard efforts of her teachers. On the other hand, Judge Corley recognized his needs and helped himself, the contrivances he uses being mostly his own inventions.

At the outset of his lecture the speaker stated that he would group the handicaps that hinder the progress of untold numbers of men and women into three classes: Those arising from mental weakness, physical deformity and moral unsoundness.

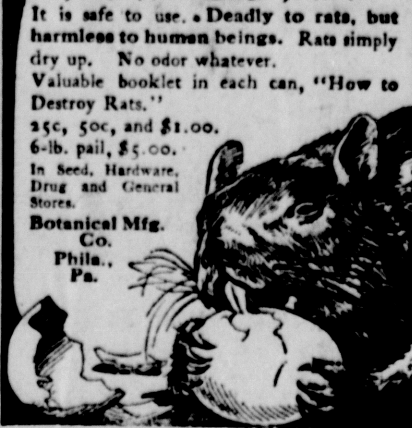

Judge Corley holds that no matter what class the handicap was in, it could be overcome. As to the matter of physical deformities, he told of how he himself had learned to do things ordinarily done with hands, after the loss of his in an accident. Experiences from his work as a probation officer were utilized in dealing with those classes troubled with mental weakness or moral unsoundness.

Education and better surroundings, kindness but firmness where wrongdoing is concerned, he declared, are what is needed for development of

DUBLIN PLANNING TO WELCOME WAGOANS

REPRESENTATIVES OF ERATH COUNTY METROPOLIS' FAIR HERE FOR CONFERENCE.

TRIP TAKES PLACE ON AUGUST 5

Large Crowd Desired by Y. M. B. L. as Dallas Excursion is on Same Day.

Dublin is making preparations for entertaining the Waco boosters who will reach that city on the second of the season's trade trips about 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 5, according to N. D. Smith and H. A. Evans of that city, who were in Waco yesterday to confer with the trade trips committee of the Young Men's Business League concerning the trip.

The Dublin men are representatives of the Dublin fair which will be running in full blast at the time the trade trip is run.

The Dublin fair association is advertising the coming of the Waco business men quite extensively, fulfilling the promise made to the directors when the invitation to run the trade trip to their city was given. Letters are being sent out over the territory adjacent to Dublin announcing the coming of the Waco trippers. Stationery and stamps have been furnished to the Y. M. B. L. here, together with a list of merchants of Dublin and all the towns surrounding it, in order that the Y. M. B. L. here may send out personal letters.

A determined effort will be made to carry a large number on the Dublin trip, which will be on the next to last day of the Dublin picnic. A trade excursion from Dallas will be in the city at the same time, and the trade trips committee of the Y. M. B. L. will make every effort to lay the Dallas crowd in the shade. The Dublin trip is expected to prove popular on account of the easier hours. The special train will reach Dublin by 3 o'clock in the afternoon, leaving several hours for resting before the train starts back about 7:30. The train will reach the city on the return by 10:30.

COUNTY COURT BEGINS LAST WEEK OF TERM

FORTY-NINE CRIMINAL CASES SET, OF WHICH SIXTEEN ARE ON THEFT CHARGES.

State vs. L. Dillon, Negligent Homicide, Probably Most Interesting in the List.

With forty-nine criminal cases on the docket, the last week of the July term in the county court will begin this morning. Nineteen cases are set for today, eleven for tomorrow, seven for Wednesday, six for Thursday and six for Friday, so that if all of them are tried, it will be one of the busiest weeks in the history of the court.

Charges of theft are in the greatest number with 15, aggravated assault and battery is second with 9, and others are represented as follows: Disturbing the peace 3, knuckles 1, swindling 2, breaking down fence 1, negligent homicide 1, pistol 1, selling liquor in prohibition territory 1, receiving stolen property 3, appeal 3, desertion 2, dirk 1 and violating local option law 3.

Probably the case of most interest in the docket is set for today, being that against L. Dillon for negligent homicide. Dillon is charged with being partly the cause of the death of C. S. Mans, former city electrician, who is supposed to have met his death several weeks ago by being knocked from an auto Dillon was driving. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Time to Get Lands for Locks and Dams.

To The Waco Morning News: I wish to make a correction in the publication you make from Colonel Riche. I do this in order to urge our people to hurry up securing location of lock and dam No. 6 near Chain. You have it Milan. People can see authorization has been received to buy plants to work on lock and dam opposite Heame and close to Marlin at the same time Nos. 5 and 6 because costs the government less. I had a long talk with Colonel Riche last night and he urged that the securing of lands for lock and dam No. 6 close to Marlin should be accomplished once, which would be of vast improvement to Waco and the people from here to the mouth of the Brazos; in fact all Texas. I do not wish to publish the necessity of hurrying the location of No. 6 close to Marlin, but believe my people have confidence in me, for they do know that I am fully posted. By having No. 6's location secured and decided to the government by August 3 or thereabouts will be a ten-strike for Waco.

Respectfully, JAS. B. BAKER.

Cameron Park Casino Has Overflow Crowd for Orchestra Concert

The only reason that more people did not hear the concert by the Casino orchestra last night was that there was no more room for them. A very attractive program had been announced and preparations made to handle a large crowd, but George G. Stubbfield, proprietor, never expected anything like the attendance that was on hand.

Every seat was taken on the roof garden, the summer garden was filled to overflowing, and many stood up while the music lasted. The Sunday night concerts at the Cameron Park Casino are proving even more popular than was anticipated and the management is very much gratified over the public appreciation of the good music offered.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. B. N. Spencer of Dallas is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. C. Brown, 1609 North Fifth street.

Rev. J. M. Dufson, pastor of the First Baptist church, left last night for Palacios to attend the B. Y. P. U. encampment there.

Mrs. O. C. Lyons and grandmother, Mrs. J. D. Blair and aunt, Miss Mattie Blair, of Killeen, are visiting in Waco for several days.

Hon. Pat M. Neff and family have left on a six week's tour of the west, during which time they will take in the Panama-Pacific exposition and other sights in that section of the country.

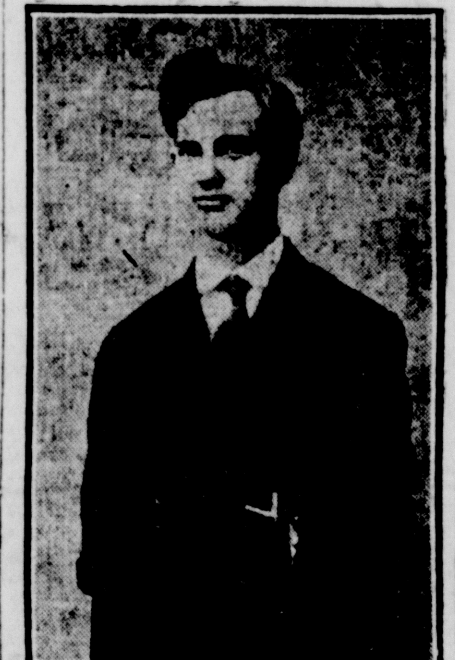

Bettis Band Gives Sunday Concert at Cotton Palace Park

Cotton Palace park was one of the most popular places in town yesterday afternoon, the attraction being the concert by Bettis' band from 4 to 6 o'clock. Several encores were responded to and the audience seemed well pleased with the music.

Many persons take advantage of the opportunity to see what is being done towards the 1915 Cotton Palace. The course of the stream through the grounds has been changed and it is expected that by fall it will be possible to run boats through the park, which would be quite an addition to the entertainment facilities. Work is also progressing nicely on the new race track.

Burns Received by F. A. Gildersleeve Are Not Dangerous

F. A. Gildersleeve is recovering slowly from the burns he received Saturday afternoon when the gasoline in the tank of his auto caught fire while he was working with it. He was severely burned about the face, neck and cheek but fortunately had his glasses on so his eyes were not injured. It is not expected that the burns will keep Mr. Gildersleeve from his photograph gallery very long, and his many friends hope that none of the wounds will turn out to be serious.

JUDGE QUENTIN D. CORLEY.

both the mentally and morally harassed. Of course, Judge Corley explained, he did not mean that a raving lunatic or criminals of the most hardened order could be made into first-class citizens by the methods in question. If such methods had been used earlier, however, he pointed out that the chances would have been that the persons would not have been in the conditions they are today.

His lecture was a message of optimism. He cited many examples of persons who had become almost moral perverts but who, when they were drifting, faced about, and are now respectable members of society. He also told of persons, mentally weak, who had been helped to do much more than they could at first, so that they could take care of themselves.

Judge Corley has invented many devices for use in the place of his hands, and by employing these devices before his audience he added much to the interest of his address. Those present watched and heard him with rare attention.

Realizing his deficiencies for business occupation, Judge Corley began studying law and working at a better hand for use of his left arm. He started in 1906, in November, and by November, 1907, he had obtained his license. He became justice of the peace in 1908, in November again, and in November, 1912, he qualified as county judge. In 1910 he perfected and obtained letters patent upon the hand that he now uses, an extremely ingenious device with which he writes, eats, handles the heavy dockets of his court, buttons his clothes, ties his shoelaces and does anything else done by any other man, including his latest accomplishment as a motorist.

In addition to his position as county judge of Dallas county, Judge Corley is a member of the board of the State School for Delinquent Girls, now being erected at Gainesville. Judge Corley took a prominent part in raising the $25,000 by the people of the state necessary before a similar amount from the state could be utilized.

Judge Corley left for his home in Dallas soon after delivering his lecture yesterday afternoon. The lecture here was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

JUDGE D. D. CORLEY SPEAKS AT CRYSTAL

MAN WITHOUT HANDS DELIVERS LECTURE ON "OVERCOMING DIFFICULTIES."

ILLUSTRATES CONTRIVANCES

Handicaps That Hinder Progress Are Grouped Into Three Classes.

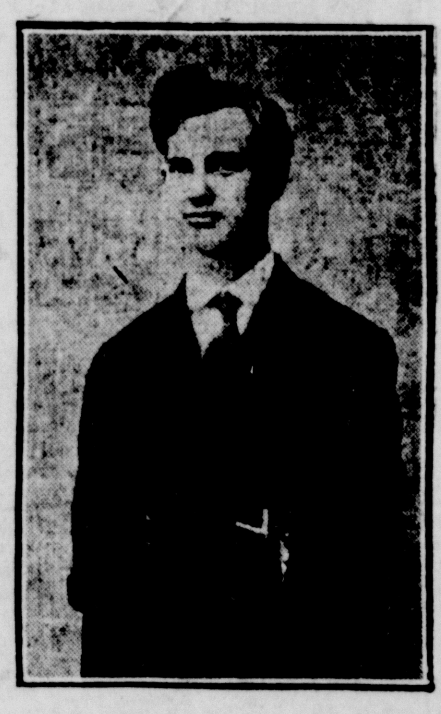

To a large crowd of men and boys at the Crystal theatre yesterday afternoon, County Judge Quentin D. Corley of Dallas county, sometimes called the "Armless Wonder," delivered his interesting illustrated lecture on "Overcoming Difficulties." Probably no man in Texas is better qualified to talk on the subject, for, while Judge Corley has lost both hands and all of one arm, he does almost anything that any other man can do.

Many have compared Judge Corley's lecture with that of Miss Helen Keller on "Happiness." Both have achieved wonders against almost insurmountable difficulties, but while Miss Keller learned to read and talk, although deaf and blind, she did it through the hard efforts of her teachers. On the other hand, Judge Corley recognized his needs and helped himself, the contrivances he uses being mostly his own inventions.

At the outset of his lecture the speaker stated that he would group the handicaps that hinder the progress of untold numbers of men and women into three classes: Those arising from mental weakness, physical deformity and moral unsoundness.

Judge Corley holds that no matter what class the handicap was in, it could be overcome. As to the matter of physical deformities, he told of how he himself had learned to do things ordinarily done with hands, after the loss of his in an accident. Experiences from his work as a probation officer were utilized in dealing with those classes troubled with mental weakness or moral unsoundness.

Education and better surroundings, kindness but firmness where wrongdoing is concerned, he declared, are what is needed for development of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Time to Get Lands for Locks and To The Waco Morning News:

I wish to make a correction in the publication you make from Colonel Riche. I do this in order to urge our people to hurry up securing location of lock and dam No. 6 near Berlin. You have it Milan. People can see authorization has been received to buy plants to work on lock and dam opposite Hoarne, and close to Marlin at the same time Nos. 5 and 6 because it costs the government less. I had a long talk with Colonel Riche last night and he urged that the securing of lands for lock and dam No. 6 close to Marlin should be accomplished at once, which would be of vast improvement to Waco and the people from here to the mouth of the Brazos; in fact all Texas. I do not wish to publish the necessity of hurrying the location of No. 6 close to Marlin, but believe my people have confidence in me, for they do know that I am fully posted on all Texas. I do not wish to secured and deeded to the government by August 3 or thereabouts will be a ten-strike for Waco.

Respectfully,
JAS. B. BAKER.
